

“This machine is the most innovative product Naim has ever made, and one of its finest: expect it to be a trendsetter”

feed it the real stuff – lossless or uncompressed music files, or high-bitrate rips or streams – and this is a system that’s both remarkably easy to listen to and massively rewarding.

The amplification has more than enough power to drive even demanding speakers, the sound is clean, open and gutsy, whether with mainstream music or high-quality classical downloads, and – aside from some faffage getting it to stream Apple Lossless from one of our Macs, set-up and operation is simple.

This is the most innovative product Naim has ever made, and one of its finest: expect it to be a trendsetter.

NOW ADD THESE

MUSIC PLAYER
APPLE IPOD CLASSIC 120GB

£ 179

If you don’t have a stack of music on a NAS or computer, then the 120GB Classic provides simple storage. The latest, fifth-generation model is only 10.5mm deep and remains the jewel in the crown of MP3 players. Alternatively, you could go for a Touch, complete with a NaimUniti remote app...

SPEAKERS
PMC DB11

£ 770

These weighty little speakers prove a fine match with the gutsy, informative NaimUniti. Measuring just 29cm tall, the DB11s’ sound much bigger than they should: the solid, powerful bass is matched by a crisp, open and detailed upper range. But the Naim will drive even better speakers if required.

SPEAKER CABLE
CHORD COMPANY CARNIVAL
SILVERSCREEN

£ 6/m

No-nonsense, high-quality cable from a long-time Naim collaborator and neighbour. It’s a truly standout product for the money. Shall we say two five metre runs...?

TOTAL SYSTEM £3004

Read full reviews at whathifi.com/reviews